Collaborative Strategies for Instructional Design Teams

- Sharing
- Inclusiveness
- Transparency

Goals for Instructional Designer Leaders:
- Gain awareness of institutional structure and networks to establish effective collaborations
- Embrace the institutional culture and how it impacts day-to-day activities
- Share new trends in online education and strategies to fill the gaps in our institutions
- Value team members, their identities, strengths and unique qualities
- Create rapport to ensure transparent and respectful communication
- Review processes and prototype approaches for continuous improvement

Discuss challenges and ideas for the advancement of Instructional Designer teams to support online education:
- Develop and reinforce leadership skills
- Build a strategic team for the development of online certificates and programs
- Have a voice in the online learning community

Implement effective strategies to lead Instructional Design teams:
- Improve communication skills with managers and team
- Optimize tools for rapid and quality development of online courses (Planner, Office 365)
- Discuss strategies for team building and project management

Understand institutional uniqueness to contribute to the institution’s mission and goals:
- Gain awareness of institutional structure and networks to establish effective collaborations
- Embrace the institutional culture and how it impacts day-to-day activities
- Share new trends in online education and strategies to fill the gaps in our institutions
ID Managers Deck of Cards

What needs to be added to this deck of cards? Write on a post-it-note and add to the conversation...

Future Actions
- Continue collaboration to share ideas and best practices
- Be accountable for professional development goals
- Encourage team members to build professional relationships both in and out of the institution

Mary-Kate Najarian
Assistant Director of Instructional Technology
mnajaria@mc3.edu
Blue Bell, PA

Claudia Arcolin
Senior Instructional Designer
claudia.arcolin@utsa.edu
San Antonio, TX